WILL PROSPECT BERING STRAIT FOR MINERALS

(By Associated Press)
TOKYO, Aug. 1.—An expedition party recently left on a voyage to the Bering strait, near Bering sea, with the object of examining the strait and especially to determine whether gold exists in the strait. According to the Nippon Times, the party, which left Tokyo in a sailing vessel, consists of 56 persons, including Japanese, Russians and Americans. The vessel is about 400 tons.
The party has been organized by the Russian company under the joint management of the Mitsui and the Russian interests. The expedition is led by Mr. Kuznetsov, formerly a member of the diet, and is accompanied by experts, engineers and surveyors from Japan, Russia and the United States. Besides some officers of the navy and representatives of the foreign press, the vessel is equipped with wireless apparatus, which is in charge of a wireless expert of the communications department. The vessel and crew, numbering 56, are all experienced explorers.
The preliminary is subject to frequent attacks from bears of prey. The party is accordingly equipped

MOTOR CLINIC TO WORK AMONG THE CALIF. INDIANS

(By Associated Press)
SACRAMENTO, Calif., Aug. 1.—A motor clinic in charge of Dr. J. W. Calkins, who is connected with the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs, and comprising in its membership a number of state board of health members provided by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, a chauffeur and a nurse, has left to work among the Indians in Indian reservations, Indian hospitals and Indian communities in California. A report of a party by the Allen P. Gilliam, district health officer, during the spring months, which described much illness and poverty among the Indians, led to the sending of the traveling clinic.

PETITIONS FOR LABORATORY IN THE SOUTH SEAS

(By Associated Press)
TOKYO, Aug. 1.—A petition has been presented to the cabinet by Baron Furukawa, chairman of the Japanese investigation board, asking that a scientific laboratory be established in the South Sea Islands which are under the mandate of Japan.
For making scientific investigations, says the communication, "the South Sea Islands are very favorably situated." As the islands are in the Western corner of the Pacific, there is every convenience afforded for a study of the relations between the influence of the sun and the origin of typhoons. This will benefit not only Japan but also the world at large, and the scientific laboratory can also engage in the study of geology.
It is said the authorities will give the proposal every possible aid.
"It has been discovered that Dempsey has never voted, probably for the reason that he could see no money in it."
Clemenceau says he won the war. He certainly did—at the peace conference.

SOMETHING GOOD TO EAT.

A PUDDING that you may give the children is:

Crumbs Pudding.
Boil one quart of bread crumbs and put into a pudding dish and pour over the following custard: Beat the yolks of three eggs, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter and a grating of nutmeg. Cook over hot water until the custard is set. Cover with a meringue and brown in the oven.

Orange and Lemonade.

Prepare two cupfuls of sugar syrup rather heavy, add the juice of half a dozen lemons and two oranges, scald, then bottle and when cool place in the ice chest. A few spoonfuls of this fruit mixture added to cold water will prove welcome on a hot day.

Noodles and Ham.

Butter a baking dish and put into it a layer of cooked noodles, cover with a layer of ham or any chopped meat, then add another layer of noodles, add enough thin white sauce or broth to moisten, cover and bake until well heated through.

Mutton Stew With Peas.

Stew a piece of mutton until nearly tender, then add a pint of shelled peas, more or less according to the size of the family. When the peas are tender, thicken the broth with a very little flour and serve the peas around the meat. New potatoes may be added to the kettle and served with the peas.

Frozen Pudding.

Beat the yolks of six eggs until light, add a syrup made of two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of water boiled for five minutes. Beat one moment like from the fire and beat until smooth, add one quart of cream, a teaspoonful of vanilla and two eggs until mushy; then add a pint of fruit that has been crushed and put through a sieve. Ponches are especially good, or any fruit finely mashed. Freeze and let stand to ripen.

HOPI INDIANS TO HOLD ANNUAL SNAKE DANCES

(By Associated Press)
PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 1.—On the Painted Desert of northern Arizona, Hopi Indians next month will hold their annual snake dances, which annually attract thousands of tourists. This year the dances will be held in the villages of Walpi and Mishongnovi.

Most people believe the snake dance is a Hopi rain dance. This is not correct, according to Emory Kopta, a sculptor, who claims that the ceremony is a form of Indian ancestor worship. Mr. Kopta has been living in Walpi village for seven years, and says the Hopi Indians hold their rain dances in July and the snake dances in August.

Describing the ceremony, Mr. Kopta declares the dancers open the dance by stamping upon a plank laid over a pit. This is intended to notify the dead that the ceremony has begun. Between 100 and 150 snakes are needed for the annual dances.

Out of the legends of Hopi traditions has come a story telling of the origin of the snake dance, according to the sculptor. The traditions tell of a Hopi youth, a dreamer, who once set out to find what lay beyond the far hills. He traveled down the muddy Colorado until he came to a land believed to be California. There he met and wed a maiden of a strange tribe and took her back to his Hopi village.

The first children of the young couple were snakes, and the Hopi expelled the two from the village. Then the crops failed, the Indians suffered from starvation and the old village priest said the trouble was brought on by the expulsion. He declared rain would not fall or crops mature until the couple were brought back.

Acting on the priest's advice, the Indians searched the deserts for the two and eventually found them. After joining the village the woman had borne human children and these were brought back. But the snake children had eluded off into the desert.

In celebration of the couple's return, the Indians danced the first snake dance and, since the snake children could not be found, they brought all the snakes they could find to attend the ceremonies.

NEW GERMS ARE DISCOVERED BY RESEARCHERS

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—One hundred and twenty three new varieties of microscopic organisms have been catalogued here in a monograph by Charles A. Kufford, professor of zoology and research, and Dr. Olive Sweeney, research assistant, both connected with the University of California.

A number of the organisms are said to be of the species which cause the phosphorescence so frequently observed in the ocean from Southern California beach resorts. The minute beings, living from the surface of the sea to depths of 1000 feet, were captured by fine silk bolting cloth nets. All are simple cells of definite structure and color. It is said, and die quickly when exposed to the concentrated light under the microscope.

The foreign nation that is not experiencing a "crisis" at present is behind the fashion.

At last the railroad rates may be corrected. It is given out that they are killing the circus business.

COATLESS CAMPAIGN PROVES A SUCCESS

(By Associated Press)
ROMA, Aug. 1.—A "coatless" campaign for the hot summer months has succeeded in very high aristocratic circles in Rome. The "coatless" campaign was carried so far that in one of the smartest balls given by the aristocracy the men appeared in white flannel trousers and shirts.
